THE UNDERWORLD

Last year, I proposed an experimental approach to a music venue to target social networks on the day of the concert. The idea: arrive early before the artists are ready to start their gig and ask some quick and easy questions about themselves, their music and the venue where they are playing tonight. Then I edit the footage on site from my laptop, cross-cutting the best parts of the interview answers with the artist's own preparation for the live show on the night. After 3 hours the video is ready to be uploaded straight onto the venue's website, facebook, twitter and more, few hours before the doors open, giving plenty of time for revellers and fans to get a glimpse of the performance on the night and bringing in those would be customers still undecided as to where they are going tonight.

ONE MINUTE SHOW

Pilots TV series Comedy

The 'One Minute Show' is a low budget, late night, train-wreck of a news programme starring a fresh faced foreigner news presenter aspiring to be a top BBC anchor but settling for the smallest and least competent news organisation the UK has ever known instead.
